The government was the second to announce a policy to provide the Wi-Fi service at public places. "The Karnataka State Tourism Development Corporation Limited would install Wi-Fi and Internet cafes near colleges, residences and hotels. Students would have to pay only for the usage to avail it," Minister of State for Information Technology P Pani told reporters here. The state government's decision on Wi-Fi in public spaces came a day after the Central government announced free Wi-Fi facility in 4,000 villages. The central government's move to provide free Wi-Fi services in 4,000 villages was welcome, but there was a catch: the central government announced that only public places would be covered. Last month, the Karnataka High Court observed that there should be no discrimination against people as far as free Wi-Fi access is concerned. The state government has also taken note of the request of a private company to install private Wi-Fi access points in about 1,500 hotels to make them more appealing to tourists. As of now, the wi-fi facility is not available at any of the 170 hotels in the city, but additional capacity is being brought in, the state government said. "We have observed that there is a gap in the service sector in Bangalore," Minister of State for IT P S Sivasayya said. The state government has also formed a committee to explore the feasibility and possibility of increasing electricity consumption in Bangalore, he said. "It will be in charge of finding out the possible ways and means to increase power consumption and will submit its report in the next three months," Sivasayya said.Q: Stopping Sharepoint Managed Metadata Services Service can cause severe performance issues I am curious as to what
